

About Us

'We really need some independent advice on whether we are doing the right thing'.

'I am on my own and need some moral support, someone who knows the ropes and can guide me through this'.

We are a Dorset based business established in 2007; Very much a family team. I am Martin Fox, the principal, I have worked in Dorset almost all of my Working life and lived there for 34 years. I have several years previous experience working within an independent property agency in Dorset. I have many years experience as a senior manager

During the course of my work I have seen at first hand the difficulties faced by clients when looking to buy property, particularly if they live some distance away. The search can be exhausting, and unless you have the time to constantly check all available property outlets, then the task is made that much more difficult. The truth is that if you are searching for property through traditional channels then you will not see all of what is available.

We have an excellent working knowledge of the area and with property outlets.

Our approach is tailored to ensure that your interests are uppermost in our search for your Home.

Our approach is informal and without presure.

We respect confidentiality where that is an issue.
